LIVINGSTON TAKES PART IN CONVIVIO 2006

Livingston S.p.A., the Italian leisure airline, offering both scheduled and charter flights and owned by the Ventaglio Group, will be among the sponsors of Convivio 2006.

Held at the MilanoCity Exhibition Center from June 9 to 13, 2006, Convivio is Italy's principal Charity Market organised to raise funds for the Lombardy-based branch of ANLAIDS (the National Association for the Fight against AIDS). The aim is to collect funds and tackle the problem of AIDS with a concrete, positive approach. Convivio has become an event of international renown with the power to involve some of the most important names in the Italian business world, create awareness among national institutions and rally a large number of volunteers.

For the third year running, Livingston S.p.A. has chosen to make an active contribution to the project by offering air tickets to some of the long-haul destinations included in its network and by placing its logo beside that of Convivio in the advertising campaign promoting the event.
